Ethnography of egalitarian social systems was first met with sheer disbelief. Today, it is hotly debated in a number of fields and has gained sophistication as well as momentum. This collection of essays on "property and equality" acknowledges this sophistication by presenting research results in two complementary volumes. They bring together a wide range of authoritative researchers most of whom have worked in hunter-gatherer groups. These two volumes cover existing ethnographic and methodological ground while maintaining a clear focus on the relation between property and equality. These books consist of the most recent work by prominent members of the original group of researchers in hunter-gatherer studies, among them James Harris and Richard Lee, and very recent ethnography on hunter-gatherers and other egalitarian systems.

Thomas Widlok obtained his Ph.D. in Social Anthropology at the LSE and has taught in the universities of London, Cologne, Kyoto, and Heidelberg. He was a member of the Cognitive Anthropology Research Group in Nijmegen, Netherlands. Currently he is lecturer in anthropology at the University of Heidelberg and a member of the research staff at the Max Planck Institute for Psycholinguistics in Nijmegen.

Wolde Gossa Tadesse obtained his Ph.D. in Social Anthropology at the LSE and has worked on East African pastoralist groups. He is affiliated to the Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology where he was a member of a research staff from 2000-2003. Currently he is with the Christensen Fund in California.
PROPERTY AND EQUALITY

RITUALISATION, SHARING, Egalitarianism

Volume I

Edited by Thomas Widlok and Wolde Gossa Tadesse

The ethnography of egalitarian social systems was first met with sheer disbelief. Today it is still hotly debated in a number of fields and has gained sophistication as well as momentum. This collection of essays on "property and equality" acknowledges this diversification by presenting research results in two complementary volumes. They bring together a wide range of authoritative researchers most of whom have worked with hunter-gatherer groups. These two volumes cover existing ethnographic and theoretical ground while maintaining a clear focus on the relation between property and equality. These books consist of the most recent work by prominent members of the original group of researchers in hunter-gatherer studies, among them James Woodburn and Richard Lee, and very recent ethnography on hunter-gatherers and other egalitarian systems.

Thomas Widlok obtained his Ph.D. in Social Anthropology at the LSE and has taught anthropology in the universities of London, Cologne, Kyoto, and Heidelberg. He was a member of the Cognitive Anthropology Research Group in Nijmegen, Netherlands. Currently he is Lecturer in anthropology at the University of Heidelberg and a member of the research staff at the Max Planck Institute for Psycholinguistics in Nijmegen.

Wolde Gossa Tadesse obtained his Ph.D. in Social Anthropology at the LSE and has published on East African pastoral societies. He is affiliated to the Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology where he was a member of a research staff from 2000 to 2003. Currently he is with the Chancellor Fund in California.